YouTube Channel Growing

The National Vanguard Alliance (NVA) video channel received two "strikes" (complaints, often on "hate" grounds or technicalities) from Jewish-run YouTube about six months ago. If it would have received one more "strike" in the following three months the channel would have been permanently removed by the censors.

The volunteer who runs the channel said, "I was forced to temporarily shut the NVA channel down for three months, until the two strikes expired. They have now expired, so I was able to reopen the channel once again. So, as long as I don't get three strikes against it in the next three months, all is good. YouTube hates the channel though, of course.

"I would say it is currently back to where it was just before I had to temporarily shut it down, and it is growing. It currently has 3,924 subscribers, and 480,005 collective total views. It won't be long before we have 5,000 subscribers and half a million views."

It is good to use the enemy's platforms, such as YouTube and other social media companies, for the large audience they can bring to our ideas. But we must always bear in mind that, until the day when these companies are removed from Jewish hands or are regulated in the public interest, our accounts there can disappear overnight. Therefore we should always have backup accounts, and backups for the backups, in addition to keeping our most important media — such as our American Dissident Voices radio broadcasts and our Cosmotheism videos — securely on our own servers.

Special Hans Schmidt Book Offers

As this issue of the BULLETIN goes to press it can be reported that an encouraging number of our members and supporters took advantage of the exclusive February-only offer of Mr. Schmidt's SS Panzergrenadier delivered to their mailbox, new, for $10 postpaid. That remarkable hardback book will now be offered to the public on our newly launched online Cosmotheist Book Store at more than double that special price including postage, here: https://cosmotheistchurch.org/shop/

In April, the Cosmotheist Book Store will offer to the public two more of Mr. Schmidt's works, Jailed in 'Democratic' Germany and Hitler Boys in America at a reasonable price, plus postage. Again, however, the Alliance's most loyal friends and supporters — you who receive this BULLETIN — have an opportunity to purchase these books at a much lower price; an offer extended only to you, and only during the month of March: both of these books, together, new, for $25, postpaid in the US (add $10 for international orders).

There are used copies of these books available on Amazon.com, and the very lowest prices for them are twice our price, with postage added to boot. The lowest Amazon price currently for both of these two books together, new, is — believe it or not — $137!

This one-time special book offer ends on 31 March.

Here is a review of Jailed in 'Democratic' Germany by Michael Hoffman:

A German combat veteran of World War II who later emigrated to the U.S. and became an American citizen, Hans Schmidt was visiting his elderly mother in Germany in the mid-1990s when he was arrested by the "democratic" government of Germany for having published, in Florida, a German-language history newsletter questioning Zionist and Allied WWII dogma. Jailed in 'Democratic' Germany tells of his mistreatment and imprisonment as a thought criminal in the nation of his birth. This rare book reveals a hidden history which is almost never an issue for the Establishment media when discussing modern Germany — its relentless imprisonment of researchers, scholars, and historians who dare to ask probing questions or express doubts about accounts of alleged homicidal gas chambers in Auschwitz. Here is a book for any civil libertarian or anyone interested in studying the largely ignored, sordid underside of "German democracy" — which presumes to lecture China, Russia, and Iran on the need for freedom of speech and expression in their nations. As Mr. Schmidt demonstrates, there is no such thing for revisionist writers in post-war Germany.

Here is a review of Hitler Boys in America (the subtitle of which is Re-education Exposed: A Comparative Study of the Soul-Destroying Effects of the Allied-Imposed Re-education on the Psyche of the German People), written by James Varner:

After reading Hans Schmidt's previous two books (Jailed in 'Democratic' Germany and SS Panzergrenadier), I have come to love the author, his works, and his unique style. He uses powerful examples to illustrate his points, and his books are real eye-openers. Hitler Boys In America is no different. I was enthralled from first page to last, and I learned so much on a topic that is usually either distorted or suppressed. Hats off to Waffen-SS veteran Hans Schmidt! He is a symbol of courage and truth in a world in which cowardice and lies dominate.

Send your $25 per two-book set (or $35 if ordering internationally) to our postal address shown on page one.

More Media Coverage

The National Alliance's Love Your Race flier campaign officially culminated in mid-February with wide participation and positive activist reports received in the National Office from across the US. There has been outstanding local media coverage in California, and ongoing, intense coverage in Iowa even up to this 2 March newspaper account received just as this issue of the BULLETIN goes to press:

White supremacist fliers that showed up on driveways in the Wetherby Park neighborhood in January weren't just another hate-based incident — they became a starting point for community action.

The fliers, the latest in a string of racist behavior in Iowa City, prompted a visit from the FBI's Cedar Rapids office and pushed a new community group to hold its first public meeting. . . .

After the Wetherby Park fliers, Thomas Reinwart, the agent in charge of the FBI's Cedar Rapids office, came to Iowa City to discuss how officers handled each of the incidents, Matherly said. . . .

In many cases, though, racist fliers or speech alone do not lead to formal charges, Matherly said.

"If speech is protected, and it is taking place and it is attached to a low-level crime, we don't necessarily charge that person if it's protected speech. To do so would be selective enforcement on our part. It would be charging somebody with a crime that we wouldn't normally charge them with just because we didn't agree with what they said on those fliers. If the fliers are legally protected speech, and it violates laws like littering and handbills, it doesn't automatically mean we're going to charge them."

That difficulty was part of a discussion held a little over two weeks before Matherly's presentation, on Feb. 2, by the Johnson County Interfaith Cluster.

The interfaith cluster, led by the Rev. Anthony Smith [a Black — Ed.], pastor of New Creations International Church, is a relatively new group of churches and community organizations fighting systemic racism, inequality and inequity.

The group met with Matherly, City Manager Geoff Fruin and Mayor Jim Throgmorton. . . .

"One of the things that came out of that meeting was that we had three asks: One was that the city would launch an investigation with the FBI and Department of Justice of hate crimes in our area," Smith said in an interview with the Press-Citizen. "We also asked that the city would dedicate an officer to update us on all of the progress of the investigation and of anything that the city was going to do and, third, that they would provide additional resources toward looking into hate crime propaganda."

The broader concern, Smith said, is that hate groups are making their way to Iowa City and the Quad Cities and are creating a climate for hate crimes.

"Even though the propaganda may not warrant an offense, it demonstrates the hate that is going on in our community, and that puts the livelihood of people of color in jeopardy," Smith said. "This is why we brought our awareness to this because these instances, even though a law hasn't been broken, you're still dealing with the livelihood of people of color and the possibility of a hate crime in the making."

Matherly said the police department, in addition to the meeting with the FBI, has designated officer Michael Smithey as an investigator of race-based crimes and as a liaison between the FBI and police agencies in the area, and in Cedar Rapids and the Quad Cities.

It is good to see that law enforcement in the area acknowledges that no laws have been broken and that selective enforcement targeting our members would itself be legally questionable.

In San Bernardino, California, however, the police themselves broke the law when they removed our Love Your Race fliers, presumably destroyed them, and then advised others to destroy them.

Here's the police department's own statement on the matter:

> Attention Community Members! We wanted to let you know we are aware of the inappropriate flyers being distributed in the 3000-3700 block of Parkside and Broadmore. 46 were collected today and the all [sic] relevant authorities have been notified. Please destroy or throw away if found.

Such crimes by the police are inexcusable, as observers and commenters made clear in the press and on the San Bernardino Police Department's own Twitter feed. Here is one example:

> A flyer that says "love your race" warrants the SBPD to call all hands on deck to scramble around and confiscate them all — as though they don't have laws to enforce and as though suppression of free speech is in their job description? Meanwhile, all the gang-related graffiti goes unfettered . . . . To top it off, the National Alliance, a group few people would want to aid, probably has a legit law suit on its hands that will cost taxpayers dearly . . . I'm pretty sure it's not legal to use police to suppress opinions we might find objectionable. I'm pretty sure that's a violation of the US Constitution. You'd think the police would be aware of this. Here's an idea. The SBPD should focus on law enforcement instead of protecting residents from objectionable opinions. It's no wonder they're failing. They must be pretty busy with matters not related to law enforcement.

Legal Update

There is not much to report this month on the legal front, except more seemingly endless pre-trial hearings are now docketed for Chairman Williams' disputes with our hostile, anti-Alliance neighbors for 14 March and 26 April in West Virginia's 11th Judicial District's Pocahontas County Circuit Court. There may finally be the appeal trial before the end of May for Chairman Williams' misdemeanor assault conviction from two years ago — that is, after so many continuances already — if the April pre-trial hearing allows for that.

Updates of progress on the legal front will be reported as they occur. We do not want to say too much in these pages because it is known that at least one person receiving this BULLETIN each month feeds it to the Jews at the so-called Southern Poverty Law Center (SPLC), who then feed it to one of their admitted paid informants, who now works closely and openly with Chairman Williams' accuser, the hostile and unhinged Garland Corse. They misquote and distort what we say here on a supposedly pro-White Internet gossip forum, the owner of which, Alex Linder, allows them free rein to promote Corse, her slanders, and her attempted coup against Alliance leadership.

Those who receive this BULLETIN know what is said in it and do not need it interpreted by SPLC informants. The Honorable Judge Jennifer Dent will rule on the matters before her West Virginia court between litigants Williams and Corse in due time. Those cases will not be resolved on anti-Alliance blogs and forums. The Special Prosecutor, brought in by accuser Corse's demand for one to prosecute the accused's misdemeanor assault conviction, has offered Chairman Williams another plea deal of "time served," which was declined. "Let's go to trial. I want to face my accuser and expose her criminal coup attempt and her abuse of the judicial process for the last three years," says Williams.

Reprint of Classic Title Planned

A couple of months ago we mentioned our desire to republish the long out-of-print 1984 classic The Best of Attack and National Vanguard (BANV).

We are now in the early stages of preparation with our printing house to get this popular book of ours back on the market. We do not have a delivery date now, but will price this reprint of BANV at a reasonable price, depending on our costs. We will order sturdy, custom-sized cardboard mailers for this coffee table-sized book, just like the ones we used for its shipping it in the old days. There are six used copies of BANV for sale on Amazon.com, all in just "acceptable" or "good" condition, ranging in price from $165 to $280 each, plus shipping. One seller states as a qualifier that his copy is sold as an "historical curiosity." That sort of ridiculous opinion of BANV will be the historical curiosity if we have anything to do with shaping our history.

Eric Paulson, a long time supporter of William Pierce and the National Alliance, has written a wonderful review of "Chairman Pierce's Big Red Book" that will soon be published in our online magazine nationalvanguard.org, along with an offer for pre-orders to help pay for the project. We'll have more to report in future issues of the BULLETIN.

Correspondence

Dear National Alliance: [To answer your question], we live in a very rural area. The county is Citrus, located in Florida, and White people here according to society's norms are "okay." However travel south to Tampa or Orlando and things start to deteriorate. The cultural Marxism of the Jew is widely prevalent... homosexuality, race mixing, and "gender" nonsense, to name a few, can be seen all over, as with any larger metropolitan area. This area has good places to spread the word of the Alliance. I've been involved in our cause in one way or another since around 1999... I had a child and basically became inactive. Now she's all grown up and I'm wanting to get involved. I'm here specifically for fellowship and to learn. Hopefully I can contribute something worthwhile. — Anonymous, via the White Biocentrism forum

Dear Chairman Williams: On Mardi Gras Day, 13 February, there were three separate shootings in New Orleans, with three dead and five wounded. There was another one this morning (14 February) in a Black area. That brings the total for 2018 to 30, three more than this time last year. Forty-plus years ago, murder was so unusual during the two weeks of Mardi Gras that for 20 years one killing of a queer doctor in his own house, clubbed to death by a younger man, was referred to as "the Mardi Gras murder." A couple of years earlier in the same neighborhood, a queer bar called the Upstairs Lounge was torched by an arsonist, killing 32. The only suspect, another queer, wasn't charged but committed suicide a year later. That was the biggest mass murder among the "LGBT" crowd in American history until 100 were mowed down in that queer bar in Orlando a couple of years ago.

Queers aside, what is the main difference between New Orleans of 40 years ago and the New Orleans of today? Any rational person with eyes will tell you that in the intervening 40 years the city has switched from a White majority to a Black majority, and now includes a much larger number of other non-Whites. Back around 1988 an intelligent Black co-worker told me he feared that Black gun violence would take away the Second Amendment, and that soon after there would be something like a racial holy war (Ben Klassen's designation), though at the time we were not aware of that term. Maybe he had read Dr. Pierce's The Turner Diaries. — O.C., Louisiana

Chairman Williams, thanks so much for the pins, card, and holder, and for the monthly progress reports in the BULLETIN. I can sense that we are getting some results by the liberal media's immoderate name calling. I don't know one person here in Santa Fe who openly admits to knowing our truths. The law requires them to be civil so I sneak the truth in whenever I can. Enclosed is a donation. Please send some "Love Your Race" fliers. — P.C., New Mexico

Chairman Williams responds: Our National Alliance organization has slowly renewed much of its former strength over the past three years of rebuilding while overcoming considerable obstacles. One measure of increased confidence in the National Alliance is the amount of mail we receive, much of it reports like those above and below from members, being our eyes and ears and networking with us. We read and appreciate all members' reports and mail whether in a letter, email, or a note on the Dues Statement when returned. Unfortunately we can only publish a few each month in the BULLETIN. Members who are online are reminded again that you can participate as commenters under articles at nationalvanguard.org and at our whitebiocentrism.com forum.

Dear Chairman Williams, I just got back from two months in Sweden. No one there will talk politics or any issue concerning the invasive non-White immigrants. They are in total denial about the negative impact Third World invaders are having on the Swedish quality of life. January through June dues are enclosed. Great job you are doing! — R.L., Ohio

Dear Chairman Williams: Many thanks for the recently received literature and information. To answer your question, I learned about the National Alliance from an advert you placed in Heritage and Destiny in England. My $25 membership application fee is enclosed along with the first month's dues. An additional $10 is enclosed for Hans Schmidt's SS Panzergrenadier. You are greatly appreciated. Best of luck, White Pride World Wide! — T.W., England

Chairman Williams responds: Welcome to the National Alliance, T.W.! Look for a letter to the editor from me in Heritage and Destiny #83 (March/April), updating its readers about National Alliance progress, and criticizing a notorious trouble-maker from here in the states who had been quoted in issue #81. The postage alone on Mr. Schmidt's book that we mailed to you was $14, so you'll notice with this month's offer an additional $10 is added for international orders.

Commentary by Chairman William White Williams

What Should We Do?

In September 1989 National Alliance Chairman William Pierce wrote to his Alliance members and supporters, telling them he would have his second novel, Hunter, in print that November and that it was better than his successful first novel, The Turner Diaries. He then went on to discuss how mortally serious was America's trouble. He told us that the feasibility of restoring a healthy White America without first descending into chaos had vanished decades earlier — and this was written nearly 30 years ago! He said dissolution was inevitable, and, were he around today to see the condition of White America, he would see he was correct with his prediction.

Then he asked, "What should we do?" The following is how he answered that difficult question:

First, I believe we should face reality squarely. I believe we should soberly assess the situation around us and accept the fact that we can't salvage all of it. We can't raise the dead. We can't halt an historical process which has proceeded as far as the decay of America has. If we fail to face reality and continue to deceive ourselves into thinking that America can be turned around again via the electoral process or some other clever scheme, then we only postpone the personal disillusionment and "burnout" which eventually will be forced on us. And meanwhile we fail to attract to our cause many of the hardheaded people who do not make a habit of self-deception.

Second, I believe we should address ourselves to the task of salvaging what can be salvaged, and refine our strategies for accomplishing this task. This society, after all, is going somewhere. Eventually someone will inherit the wreckage. Eventually something else will grow out of that wreckage. We have a lot of good genetic material and a lot of good minds left in America; a lot of racially and morally sound men and women with good character and good sense, who have remained immune to the poisonous influences all around them. It is absolutely essential to reach and orient this White elite, because some of these people will have both the will and the ability to participate actively in a concerted, disciplined effort to build a structure capable of sustaining and perpetuating itself in the dark years ahead; of preserving intact the genes, values, and goals which must become the basis for a new society in the future; and of exerting at least some influence on the interim course of events.

That's the broad objective. There are various ways of approaching it.

One way is electoral politics — if we understand that we're not trying to turn the government around, but simply using the electoral process as forums for disseminating our message.

Another way is lobbying on specific issues: opposition to affirmative action and other minority-favoring programs, support for citizens' rights to keep and bear arms, opposition to further military or economic aid for Israel, etc. — again understanding that the principal aim of the lobbying is not to revive a moribund society, but to call attention to the issues and establish contact with like-minded people.

The way I chose for myself in order to address the severe social and racial problems I saw confronting my people was writing, publishing, and distributing educational materials.... Over the years this activity has put me in touch with many fine people; some of them have participated in my efforts. But now more is needed. We need more than a handful of dedicated people helping out with one project or another now and then. We need more than a membership organization whose members carry cards, pay dues, and occasionally lend someone their copy of National Vanguard magazine.

We need an elite network of hardheaded, disciplined men and women who are both willing and able to use their skills and talents in a coordinated way for the benefit of our race; people willing to make a lifetime commitment to saving whatever is worth saving from the mess our race and our civilization are in; people who in most cases will continue with their professions, but will keep in touch with the network and will give priority to assignments and programs related to its purpose.

We have some excellent people now, but there are not enough of them. The work is done by too few. We have to get more capable people involved.... There are dozens of programs we should be working on, programs that require many different types of people with different skills. I know what we need to do. I believe I know how to do it. But I can't do it without more help. The details of what we do will depend on the specific people involved. I need to hear from those who are ready to help, so that we can discuss the details and make decisions. As for everyone else, I appreciate your continued patience and support.

The National Alliance today has approximately the same modest number of members and supporters in good standing that it enjoyed when Dr. Pierce wrote those words. During the early 1990s and up until his death in 2002, membership grew slowly but steadily as more and more good people recognized the Alliance's potential and joined their talents and resources with ours. That potential for building a lasting powerhouse of an organization is still here, and our people are looking around for the sound program and the hope we can offer them. It is our job to reach and orient them with our powerful Alliance message, by any and every means we can.

Creative Activism

Member Jim Mathias has shown us in Iowa the interest and publicity a dedicated activist can generate for the Alliance, by innovatively and discreetly distributing our cards and fliers, and eventually getting some of his neighbors doing the same as they became emboldened by his activism. Since everyone reading this BULLETIN received our Right to Distribute information sheet last month, we're all reading from the same page, so to speak, in knowing our rights.

We are all witnessing the predictable fuss being made in the Jew-controlled media by the breathless gun grabbers after the latest school shooting in Florida, and I see an opportunity in the Jews' callous politicization of that tragedy. The National Rifle Association (NRA) and gun rights generally are under attack. It is a good time for disseminating our educational Why They Want To Disarm You fliers as creatively as we can. (It can be downloaded from natall.com/fliers and then printed.)

In the mid-1990s our Carolina National Alliance activists distributed more than 20,000 of the first edition of that flier, mostly at gun shows where we had tables. In the year 2000, when the NRA had its big annual convention in Charlotte, with 7,000 mostly-White members in attendance, four or five of us drove over from Raleigh to Charlotte early on Saturday morning, parked near the convention center, then mingled in with the crowd of leftist picketers who were walking around in front in a circle. One of our men held up the placard I'd prepared the night before, and I took the photo you see here.

The organizer of the anti-gun picketers approached us, nearly having a fit, and saying, "You can't have that sign here. It'll be the only one they'll highlight on the news!"

"No kidding, Sherlock," I fired back. "That's the whole idea."

As the caption in the photo says, that morning we placed around 700 of our National Alliance gun control fliers in the hands of those NRA conventioneers — fliers that have essentially the same truth that's on that placard: America needs "minority" control, not gun control. How many White NRA types today care about their race just as much or more than they do their guns? We don't know, but some surely will, and we need to reach them soon.

We can do these sorts of activities today, even easier in fact, with the same urgent message. When our Alliance crew left that convention facility that morning 18 years ago we went to a restaurant with the sense of accomplishment of a job well-done. We sent our After Action Report to Dr. Pierce, along with the photo, by snail mail the same day. The photo appeared on the front of that month's BULLETIN as an example to inspire other members and Local Units to say, "We can do that, too!"

Members are encouraged to send photos to us that can be used in the BULLETIN as examples of creative activism — and videos can be sent, too, for use on National Vanguard. Let's get active and encourage one another! W. W. W.
